JEF - Jeunesse européenne fédéraliste

1954-2001

12 linear meters; 271 files

The Federalist Movement was founded in 1947 in Montreux (Switzerland). JEF was born as the Youth Section of the Federalist Movement and it began its activity in several European towns in 1948. The defeat of the European Defence Community in 1954 caused a major crisis among Federalists, which affected also JEF. Although JEF sections were active everywhere, no international coordination existed. Several common actions in the late sixties, mainly the Campaign for the direct election of the European Parliament, led to the recreation of JEF Europe with the Congress of Luxembourg in 1972.

In 1983, JEF had about 10,000 members in 17 countries and was the only major youth organisation whose specific purpose is to work for a United Europe.

Actually, The Young European Federalists is a supranational, political movement active in most European countries. It is an autonomous youth organisation which has no party political affiliations or commitments. It participates in the exchange of opinions and experiences with other political movements, but will not identify with any of them. JEF's interlocutors are political parties, European, national and local institutions and associations, as well as the general public. In this sense JEF is a political movement, but not a party. JEF is not interested in the direct management of political power: it concentrates its action on the achievement of international democracy through the establishment of federal systems in Europe and in the world. The aims of JEF are to work for the creation of a European Federation, first step towards peace and World Federation, and for a freer, more just and more democratic federal society. JEF works for increased international democracy, primarily, but not exclusively, within the European continent. It seeks to implement the principles of federalism, the origins of which can be found in the writings of Proudhon, Kant, Marx, Spinelli and others. Federalism proposes a decentralised, self-managed society, in which all persons affected by a decision may participate in making it. All decisions must be reached by democratic institutions at the most appropriate level. The action is carried out by organising meetings, conferences and seminars, publishing leaflets, journals, newsletters and magazines, organising campaigns and demonstrations.

The holding consists of notes and memoranda on the action programmes, campaigns and demonstrations organised by the JEF/YEF (notably European Youth Parliament and International Youth Year), reports and resolutions of congresses, forums and seminars, correspondence with European Federalist Union, (EFU), European Movement (EM), European Coordination Bureau of International Youth Organisations (ECB), World Federalist Movement (WFM), Youth Forum (EC Commission), European Youth Centre and European Youth Foundation (Council of Europe) and national sections.

The JEF holdings were transferred from JEF Brussels headquarters to HAEU in Florence.

Two other transfers of documents were transferred to Florence in July 2000 and February 2005.

Before reorganization, it amounted to 21 packages of archives, alpha-numerically coded in 2 parts. After reclassification, the holding at present consists of 271 files that covers the period from 1970 to 2001.

The JEF holdings have been transferred to AHCE under a deposit contract signed on 1. June 1993.

The holdings are open to researchers.

JEF.A Creation and general objectives

1951-1990

2 dossiers

JEF was created in the 1950s as a youth section of the UEF, but it was only at the beginning of the 1970s that certain groups within the youth section of the UEF decided to work more closely together with the object of bringing about closer European integration. The consequence of this collaboration resulted in the first Congress of the JEF in Luxembourg (1972) whereby JEF became an autonomous political organism.
