CETS-European Conference on Satellite Telecommunications

1963-1970

0,5 linear metres;122 files

After the United States' proposal for the creation of a world telecommunications system, "Organisation internationale de telecommunications par satellites" (INTELSAT), the European countries established an institution dealing specifically with satellite communications, namely the "European Conference on Satellite" (CETS). The purpose of this conference was to draw up a common European policy for the impending negotiations with the United States, and the other member countries of the "European Conference of Postal and Telecommunications Administrations" (CEPT). Although CETS was not institutionalised by any legal act, it was at first very active: August 1964 saw the signing of the Washington agreement establishing an interim organisation, INTELSAT. The period 1964-71 was devoted to negotiation of the agreements on the final form of INTELSAT which entered into force on 12 February 1973. However, the analysis of the institutional, technical and economical implications of the project led the European Space Conference of Ministers, at its meeting of October 1968 in Bad Godesberg to take the matter of a European communication satellite programme out of CETS' hands and refer it to ESRO and ELDO. Consequently CETS, having lost its "raison d'être", ceased all activity in 1970.

The ESA headquarters in Paris stored the files. CETS files were particular topics of the filing system.

Only a few official issues of CETS, particularly of Technical Planning Staff, are stored in the files of this Fonds, the smallest of the ESA sub-divisions, but the quantity of the material is sufficient for the reconstruction of the history of the agreement between ESRO and European governments regarding space telecommunications. The files concern the various steps approaching the agreement on telecommunications with unofficial minutes, reports, notes and relevant correspondence, plus comments on the final text.

Official papers are chronologically arranged.

The fonds was deposited in the Historical Archives under the terms of the "contrat de dépôt" signed on 12 May 1989.

Following a decision taken at Rome Conference in November 1963, a board composed by a governmental delegate and optionally by some technical advisers replaced the pre-existing Direction Committee. The tasks of Committee of Deputies were to recommend decisions to and to prepare the work of the Conferences, to coordinate the activities of the other CETS bodies, to decide about the necessity to establish further sessions.

The role of the Secretariat was to inform CETS delegations of the activities of CETS bodies, to notice the dates of the meetings through circulars and memoranda, but also to prepare short studies to be discussed as item points in the meetings. The coordinating role allowed the Secretary to suggest amendments to paragraphs of the minutes not yet approved and to prepare accurately the agendas of the meetings.

The Committee of organisation was optionally composed by every governmental delegate of a CETS member that intended to prepare reports to be submitted to the Conference or previously to the Committee of Deputies. The delegates could be helped by advisors. The Committee studied also legal implications of a permanent European organisation in the field of telecommunication satellites and also the convenient European role in the related world context. Under the aegis of the Committee of Deputies, the Committee of organisation negotiated with non European governments.
