White, David

14/10/1947 Belfast [Northern Ireland]

Parallel names:White, D.M.

Other names:DW

David White of British nationality, is a native of Northern Ireland. Born in 1947, he is married with three children..After reading economics and politics at the Universities of Belfast, Manchester and London, he began his career in the UK Government Economic Service, where he worked on problems of employment, inflation and economic forecasting. In 1974 he moved to work with the European Commission where he occupied a number of posts. These have included responsibilities in employment policy and coordination of legislation on budgetary, internal market, environmental and transport policy matters. From 1985-87 he was a Member of the Cabinet of Commission President Jacques Delors, responsible for budgetary and Parliamentary matters. Since 1987, he was Head of the Public Procurement Policy Unit a position he held until 1993. From 1994 to 1999 White was Head of Unit for Regulatory Policy in DG III. He was subsequently made Director first for Enterprise Policy (2000 - 2004), then for Innovation policy (2005 - 2006) and lastly for Lifelong Learning (2007 - 2008). He retired from the European Commission in 2008. From 2009 until the present he is Honorary Director General of the European Commission and simultaneously is a researcher at the Catholic University of Leuven.

David White PapersDocuments from 1972 to 2008*

Files from the various posts which David White held in the European Commission. Aside from his time at the Secretariat General and in the Delors Cabinet, White did a remarkable amount of work as Head of the Public Procurement Policy Unit. During his time as head, a major legislative programme was prepared and implemented, with a view to achieving a single market in public procurement in the European Community. Directives had been adopted covering the procurement of supplies, works and services by the public authorities and by the utilities operating in the telecommunications, energy, transport and water sectors, along with provisions to ensure that bidder's rights would be respected. Furthermore, the Community rules were extended to cover the EFTA countries under the EEA Agreement. In parallel with the Uruguay Round, negotiations were undertaken with a view to opening up procurement between Europe, North America and Japan in the context of the GATT Government Procurement Agreement.

The Unit did not neglect to lay the basis of policy development for the future, for programmes of standardisation, statistical development, aid to the SME's and exploitation of information technology.

White reiterates that the work was a team effort in the widest sense of the word. The statistics of the Unit's consultations and discussions are evident to see in the papers of White.

Material concerning David White's career in the European Commission

Notes/remarks: Many thanks to David White who provided invaluable notes which provided the backdrop for his archival papers.

Chrono - DG V (Employment and Social Affairs) and General Secretariat

Documents from 1972 to 1984

The chrono files contain notes that David White wrote or concern topics on which he intervened substantially within the Commission. White was involved in fields of work that came under Coreper I. In particular, he reported on the budgetary debates in Council during the Thatcher campaign for UK "get our money back" and on the "super councils" of agriculture, budget and economic ministers that met in an attempt to move the debate forwards. On some of these occasions, advisers were excluded from the meetings and apart from the Commissioner, White was the only person present for the Commission. These files relate to David White's time when he worked in employment policy in DG V and in the General Secretariat, when he reported to the Commission on meetings of Coreper and of the Council. White was under the authority of the Directors of the General Secretariat, first of Henri Etienne (under the Vice-President of the Commission, Baron Tudendhat) then of Antonio Marchini Camia and later (of Paolo Ponzano as a colleague). Although many of the notes are signed by the above individuals and issued under their authority, their drafting was the responsibility of White.

Chrono - Cabinet of President Jacques Delors (Delors I)

Documents from 1984 to 1987

The chrono files are composed of notes that White wrote or on matters on which he intervened substantially. The papers refer in particular to his fields of responsibility: budget and financial control, budgetary aspects of the CAP in particular and perhaps the most interesting of all - clearance of accounts, fisheries policy, energy including the Tchernobyl accident, relations with the European Parliament and the Anglo-Irish Agreement. There are some interesting notes about efforts to prepare constructively for the visit of Bob Geldof to the EP - and a draft letter to the Bulletin, pointing out that the Commission had executed a food relief programme 10 times the total of that achieved by Geldof thereby refuting the criticism that the EC did nothing to aid a famine ravaged Ethiopia.

Six chrono files concerning the period when David White was a member of the cabinet of President Jacques Delors. The most substantial work was done from 1985 - 1987.

Notes for the period until end-February include issues such as: budgetary procedure, the clearance of agricultural accounts despite difficulties concerning a Greek issue, fisheries, funding for Northern Ireland after the Anglo-Irish Agreement, problems with EIB projects which had infringed the public procurement legislation. There is also some material concerning the "GRV", the "grande rendez-vous" as President Delors called it, of the institutions and Member States on the budgetary package then in preparation.

Chrono - Head of Unit for Public Procurement Policy in DG III, Internal Market and Industrial Affairs

Documents from 1987 to 1994

As head of the Unit, White led the discussions and negotiations on most issues, so the papers give a personal insight into the rapidly developing work and a lot of detail about the development of proposals and the concerns addressed.

Briefings for the Councils give a detailed insight into the nature of the discussions. The file for this period contains many of the over 100 non-papers which the Commission used to progress the discussion in Council.

As the legislative programme under the White Paper advanced, the intensity of activity at the GATT Government Procurement Agreement increased. There are many notes in the files giving personal assessments of the way the negotiations were developing, the issues and tensions (also within the Commission services) until their success at the end of 1993.

Furthermore, there are notes concerning a panel complaint against the USA for breach of the GATT Government Procurement Agreement in the course of procuring a sonar mapping system for use in the Antarctic Survey. The EC won the panel, but the USA blocked adoption of the panel report.

The creation of a single integrated internal market had been envisaged from the start of the European Economic Community. Within that single market, public procurement represented a major element accounting for expenditure of some 200 billion ECU per year at government level. However, there was the tendency of the purchasing authorities to confine this procurement within their own country. This practice was a major obstacle to the creation of a home market of sufficient size to allow European industry to develop competitive structures by world-wide standards. Hence, there is a sizeable amount of material on government procurement in these files.

From May 1987 White was put in charge of the Public Procurement Policy Unit of DG III. Public procurement was one of the major issues in Commissioner Lord Cockfield's White Paper on the internal market. When White took up his position,

- the proposal for a Public Supplies Directive was in first reading negotiation,
- a proposal for a Public Works Directive had been adopted, but this was rapidly seen to be inadequate and the issue was to delay the discussions until the Commission could rethink its proposal. This it achieved with help from the EP,
- a proposal for a Directive on Remedies was planned,
- a proposal for a Directive on Procurement of Public Services was envisaged,
- the major issue was the preparation of a proposal for a Directive extending a procurement regime to the telecommunications, water, energy and transport sectors which had been excluded from earlier legislation,
- the Government Procurement Agreement of the GATT was about to become active (although not part of the Uruguay Round),
- extension of the EC regime to the EFTA.

The Commission proposal on the excluded sectors was the subject of very intensive preparation and lengthy negotiations in the EP and Council. However it failed at the Internal Market Council in December 1989 but was adopted under the Irish Presidency in February 1990.

There are many notes in the files giving personal assessments of the way negotiations were developing, the issues and tensions (including within the Commission services) until their success at the end of 1993.

Head of Unit for the Co-ordination of Technical Legislation in the Direction General for Industry (DG III)

Documents from 1994 to 1999

This series includes a number of interesting papers on the cost of regulation and the whole question of whether the Commission/EU regulates too much. Of particular interest is a paper on production regulation by the Member States, established on the basis of Member States' notifications under Directive 83/189, and which shows that, contrary to the noise coming from capitals, it was not the Commission, but the Member States that were the source of most of the regulation on products. Mr Gangemann decided not to put this out as a communication, but rather as a press release. It attracted less publicity than if it was issued as a communication, yet it drew an irritated response from the UK, and gradually penetrated the wider consciousness. The basis for much of the analysis involved thorough preparation, both through economic analysis and through consultation of interested parties, that had accompanied the excluded sectors directive in White's own work on public procurement. As a result of that work, and although many interests were opposed to regulatory proposals, the bien fondé of the Commission's ambition was never seriously questioned.

Notes from the period when White was Head of Unit for regulatory policy as well as a farewell collection from Michael Hardy, sometime Director of Telecoms Policy, which whom White worked closely on the EC-US telecoms procurement agreement. Also a file of papers given to White by Ernesto Previdi, sometime Head of Unit in DG III (Industry and Internal Market) which documents the evolution of the EC approach to product legislation and the global approach to testing and certification, approaches that emerged from the Cassis de Dijon judgement of the ECJ and which made possible the achievement of the internal market. Previdi was intimately involved in all these developments.
